Thousands of organizations recognize the value of their legacy COBOL applications but are faced today with the challenge of how to modernize them and take advantage of the latest technologies. Some companies choose to rewrite their applications in a new programming language, while others replace their systems with packaged software. Both options require extensive resources including a significant amount of time, training and money. And for some organizations, the risks seem to outweigh the rewards. As a result, they opt to do nothing at all.

Why Rewrite?

Why Replace with a Package ?

Why Settle for a 40-year-old language?

Zortec has a better answer. It's called TranZform, a cost effective solution designed to provide organizations with the best of both worlds. Using existing applications, TranZform seamlessly turns legacy systems into the powerful, advanced software development environment of System Z. With TranZform, users gain new functionality and flexibility, while maximizing the usability of their existing systems, plus the benefit of:

- Increased ROI. Leverage the time and expense already invested in writing and maintaining your existing applications.
- Minimal Training / Short Learning Curve. With support for common COBOL syntax, programmers can build on their existing knowledgebase becoming productive within days.
